

JOB DESCRIPTION
English teacher, North Africa
Term length: Three years +

DNI workers in North Africa are excited about a new door that has opened. M. writes, "Here's an opportunity to tangibly bless young and old with something you may have taken for granted—the English language. We have received numerous requests for English classes, coming from varying levels of society. However, recently we received a personal request from one of the top authorities in the area for native English speakers to teach government officers under him.

You could have the option of learning the national language or other locally used languages in your spare time. A teaching background or certification would be an obvious advantage; a curriculum is available.

Requirements

- Fill out DNI application
- Attend Long-Term Orientation in NYC
- A three year minimum commitment
